TRAY

The tray is an integral unit of the collection because it interacts so seamlessly with all of the pieces. It is carved from solid wood, with gently curved edges for optimal elegance and ease of use. It is versatile enough to act as a building block for other elements, or to create a striking statement on its own.

The tray enriches any environment and confers a warm, personal touch. Individually, it functions as a traditional serving or display piece. In multiples, the trays may be stacked together to form side tables of any height, or combined with the bench to create a modular tabletop of varying lengths.
