Workbays

Ronan and Erwan Bouroullec have created Workbays as an organic system which redefines the working environment and breaks up the rigid planning grid of regular offices. Workbays offer employees the freedom to retreat to the environment which best suits the type of work they are doing. They are an ideal multifunctional furniture system for solving the practical problems office planners face.

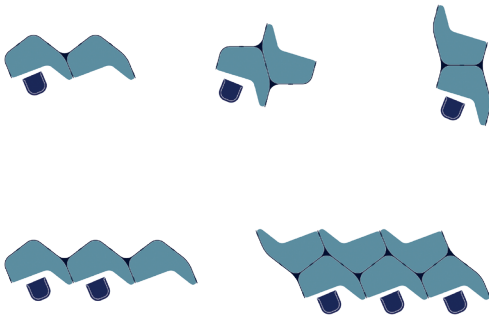

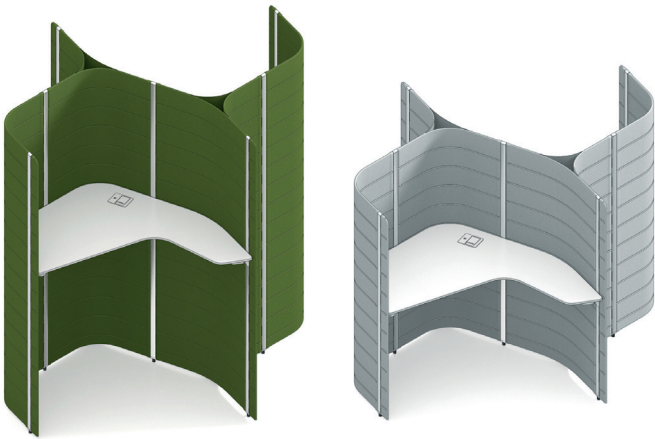

The innovative material in Workbays helps to shield the users acoustically by absorbing disruptive noise in their environment. This makes them spontaneous telephone booths, video conference rooms and reading corners, and makes them suitable for discussions or meetings over coffee – without participants having to lock themselves behind closed doors.

Workbays fit into virtually any space. The system can easily be expanded as needed or adjusted to meet changing conditions – it grows organically along with the space. The system is based on four different wall sections in two different heights. This makes it possible to create diverse configurations, from single workstations to meeting solutions all the way to micro-architectural clusters.
