A Place to Connect

The Opus™ overbed table is central to activity and interactions in the patient room. Alongside a bed or recliner, it provides a convenient, adaptable surface for meals and tasks – in combination with a surface for clinician use. Adjustable and easy to move, it works on both sides of the bed and helps give patients a sense of control over personal belongings and a boundary for personal space. At the same time, it acts as a social bridge where patients, clinicians and family members can gather and share.

INSIGHT

Bedside teaching and learning is an essential part of high-value, patient-centered care. The Opus bedside table is designed to facilitate the connections that make both possible.

Integrated Clinician Surface

A stationary standing-height surface gives clinicians a place for care essentials as they attend to patient needs. A cubby makes room for tools and supplies, and optional sliding surfaces provide supplemental space on both sides.

Personal Comfort

The height-adjustable patient surface, complete with cup holders and spill top, is concave with soft corners, so patients stay comfortable as they bring it near. An optional two-sided vanity drawer with mirror adds personal convenience.
