Flo Modular

Designed by Colebrook Bosson Saunders

In today's workspace, we require technology and equipment that's durable, flexible, and better for our eyes. Manage multiple screens and maximize vision, space, and efficiency with Flo Modular Monitor Arm. Mix and match up to four devices, including monitors and laptops, for visual height flexibility and efficient use of desktop space. Flo Modular supports devices weighing 7-20 pounds each.

A modern office workstation featuring a white desk, a grey ergonomic office chair, a large monitor, and a grey cubicle divider. The desk is cluttered with books, a small potted plant, a keyboard, and a mouse. The background shows a blue wall and a window with blinds.

Performance

Pull, push, drag, tilt, or spin. Place screens wherever, with patented Flo Spring Technology. Whether it's vertical or portrait-style screen placement, Flo Modular promotes healthier viewing distances.

Because the Flo arm can be mounted anywhere on the post, Flo Modular increases the height at which the monitor can be positioned without sacrificing the lower height. This is particularly useful in sit-to-stand applications.

Flo Modular supports up to four monitors, making it easy to track or refer to multiple sources of information simultaneously.

Design

Flo Modular supports a range of technology including monitors, laptops, and tablets. Technology can be mounted at a range of heights on a single post. Add or subtract screens as the workspace evolves, Change orientations to share content or collaborate between one to four monitor arms.

Total Support System

Just one of a full suite of monitor arms, Flo Modular supports up to four devices, making it easy to refer to multiple sources of information simultaneously.
